Facilitated by international thought leader, author and facilitator,

Albert Kamphuis

ALBERT KAMPHUIS MSC graduated in 1984 as a cultural anthropologist at the University of Leiden. He was International Management Consultant with the Dutch Multinational Philips for 5 years and established as an independent Management Consultant since 1989, his focus is on the influence of personality structures on leadership, strategy definition, innovation effectiveness, project management and team development.

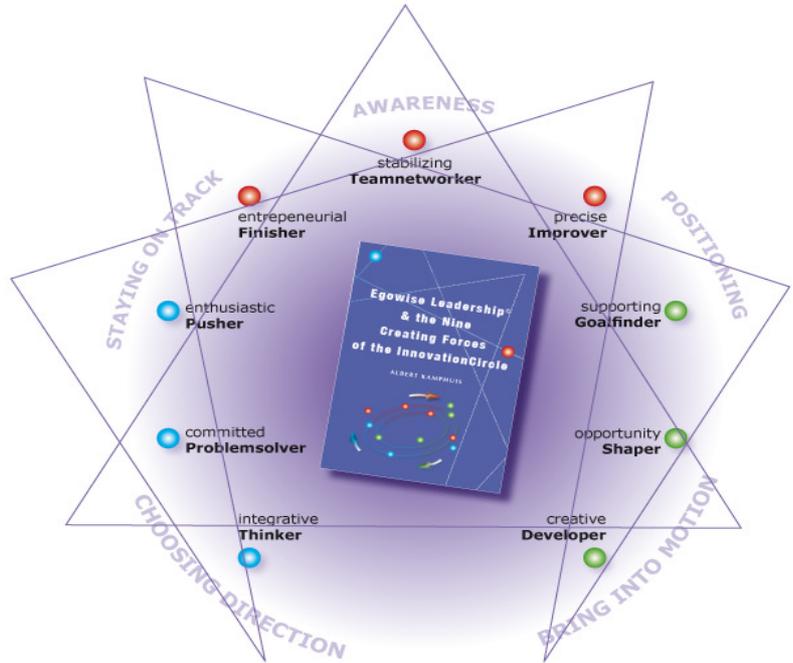

Albert's wealth of insight and experience has been captured in his book – Egowise Leadership and the Nine Creating Forces of the InnovationCircle.

Our intention is to create an experiential space to experience the creative forces of innovation. This is a conversation about deepening our orientation and application of change processes in teams, organisations (business and communities). Albert's work applies the Enneagram as the foundation supporting the subtle and simultaneously profound "Egowise" way of working with individuals and groups.

If Ubuntu is about you and me, if you are not looking after you, then you are not looking after me. In the spirit of Ubuntu, the Egowise Leadership approach is an interactive journey which unlocks and strengthens the inherent potential of individuals, teams and organisations.

Traditional team-building approaches generate short-term, temporary results that quickly wear off once the novelty of the event is worn away by the stresses and strains of life. This event is about experiencing 'the how' of building resonance between you & yourself; and you & me -Ubuntu.
